There is a bill before the Legislature of Texas, making the county in which a lynching occurs, liable in the sum of $3,000 to the heirs of the lynched. If this law be passed, some men in that State can be turned to profitable use for their heirs.

A St. Louis man was fined $2,500 by a jury for stealing a kiss from a Mrs. Pierce. Served him right. A man who, in a city where there are so many nice girls, with open countenances, would purloin kisses from a married woman ought to be punished severely.

Ed. Pardridge, the Chicago wheat manipulator, is in trouble. Some fellow, who says he means business, has informed him that if he doesn't raise wheat 10 cents a bushel pretty soon, if not sooner, he will be a subject for the coroner, and now Ed. goes around equipped with several detectives.

Rich Englishmen own 20,000,000 acres of land in this country, and other rich foreigners own 7,000,000 more. This is not held for homes, but for speculation, holding to sell when prices get high enough to suit them. No alien should be permitted to own large bodies of land in this country unless it is put to some use, to benefit the country, for purely speculative purposes never.

After Many Years!

In May, 1864, there arrived in Wilmington, a young woman whose name had long since become synonymous with a number of daring deeds and dashing exploits performed in the Shenandoah Valley of Va., in behalf of the Southern Confederacy, which had been of great services to "Stonewall" Jackson, and had gained for her the soubriquet of the "Rebel Spy." Her object in coming to Wilmington was to run the blockade from this port with important dispatches to Europe from the Confederacy. On the 5th of May she set sail on the Greyhound, under command of Capt. Geo. H. Beres, and lay under the guns of Fort Fisher until the moon set and darkness was over all. Then like a phantom ship she glided out to sea and passed out safely through the blockading fleet but was pursued and captured. Belle Boyd was sent into Canada with peremptory orders never to set her foot in the United States again. From that day to this Belle Boyd has never been in Wilmington, but on Thursday night, February 14th, at the Y. M. C. A. hall, she will relate in a stirring dramatic narration the incidents which have made her famous and of which she was an eye-witness during the war.

Sudden Death.

Mildred Sherwood, the divorced wife of Richard Sherwood, colored, died last night suddenly on the steamer Croatan. She came aboard about two o'clock in the afternoon apparently in good health, to take passage for New York. The steamer was to sail at 5 o'clock this morning. Between 10 and 11 o'clock last night she was taken sick. A physician was sent for and arrived soon after the summons, but was unable to do anything for her relief and she died at 0ut 10.30 o'clock. Her death was ascribed to heart disease. Capt. Hansen, master of the vessel, sent notification to Coroner Jacobs and the latter came and viewed the body and had it removed to the house of David Bryan on Church street.

The woman came here from New York some three weeks ago to attend the Superior Court, where she was plaintiff in a suit for divorce from her husband, which suit she gained. She had been living in Brooklyn, N. Y., about two years, and was on her return there. She was about 45 years old, had no children, but had a mother and several brothers in Wilmington.

Yacht Hattie J.

A pleasure party from New Haven Conn., composed of Captain Henry G Mack, James A. Austin, Henry S. Johnson, John S. Barrows and Alfred Pearson, put in at Southport yesterday morning in the sloop yacht Hattie J. Mr. Austin, of the party, a clever gentleman, came up to the city and called at the STAR office. He said they left New Haven about one month ago for Florida, and were stopping along the route visiting the seacoast towns.

Ducks and Robins.

The freezing weather has driven large numbers of ducks and other wild fowl to the open waters around Wilmington. One of the gunners yesterday morning bagged thirty seven brace of mallard near the city. The woods around town are said to be fairly alive with robins, and the boys are having fine sport with them.

Bill to amend chapter 144 of the Laws of 1893, so as to provide that the North Carolina Monument Association may borrow from the direct tax fund a sum sufficient to complete the monument, the sum not to exceed $10 000, was taken up, being favorably reported. Mr Moody explained the bill, stating that there was now about $36,000 of this money in the treasury which had not been called for and probably never would be. He warmly advocated the bill and declared that this money could not be put to a better use.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House met at 10 o'clock, Mr Lusk, of Buncombe, in the chair. Prayer by Rev Mr Woodard, of the House.

Bill to equalize taxation. Ordered printed.

After the expiration of the morning hour Mr Ray rose to a question of personal privilege, and had read from the clerk's desk an article from the Caucasian charging the Democratic members with being obstructionists, wilfully and by mandate of their caucus. Mr Ray denounced the article in the most scathing manner, declaring it false, malicious, vindictive and infamously slanderous. He appealed to the fair men of the majority to say if the Democrats had not aided all proper legislation, and had only exercised their constitutional right of protecting the interests of their constituents.

Mr French (Rep) arose and corroborated Mr Ray, and said the majority had not yet formulated their important legislation, but would do so at the proper time, and pass it, and therefore the minority had not obstructed the House.

Mr Monroe and Mr Smith, of Gates, (Dem.) also spoke to the question, denouncing the article and denying any caucus determination to obstruct.

The matter was then dropped, and the House proceeded to further business.

[Special Star Telegram]

The Senate, after some discussion, made the Confederate Monument bill a special order for next Tuesday.

Senator Moody stated to-day that the Steering Committee who have had the framing of the Election bill in charge have completed the bill and will probably report it to the Senate on Monday

RAPID TELEGRAPHY.

Messages at the Rate of Two Hundred Words Per Minute.

Mr. Edward S Norton, general manager, last night gave an exhibition of the Rogers system of printing by telegraph, says the Washington Star, which he says is to be put in practical operation between the cities of Washington and Baltimore within the next two weeks The exhibition took place at the office of the United States Postal Printing Telegraph Company, in the Kellogg building, and was an interesting demonstration of the possibilities of electricity in a new direction. A typewriting machine, an electric machine for transmitting, a machine for receiving and a coil of wire representing a distance of 200 miles were utilized in the operation. The message was first written on a typewriting machine with a punching machine attached. While the operator played on the keys of the typewriter, the puncher registered each letter in holes in a paper tape arranged in a coil. The arrangement of the holes represented the letters. When the message was finished the operator took off the perforated tape and placed it on the sending machine, where small metallic fingers played upon it and transmitted telegraphically a complete duplication of the holes in the tape to the receiving machine at the other end of the wire. This machine worked synchronously with the sending machine and registered the same letters in Roman characters at the same time on a sheet of paper. The message was printed and ready for delivery almost simultaneously with its sending. It is claimed that 200 words a minute can be transmitted and printed by this system, and that even greater speed will be developed when certain improvements are made.

FIGHTING STANDARD OIL.

Opposition Petroleum Men Increase Their Capital and Will Keep Up Competition.

More than three hundred producers of petroleum met in Butler, Pa., to devise means to continue their successful competition with the Standard Oil Company. There were present producers from New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, representing an investment of over $50 000 000.

Ex Senator Lee was made chairman, and stated that the producers met in good temper, but to talk plainly about the situation. About three years ago the Producers' Oil Company began business with a capital of $600 000, which was increased to $2 000 000, and though hampered at every turn by the Standard Oil Company there were now two independent pipe lines, one for crude and one for refined oil, extending from the oil country to the seaboard. Now the Standard Oil Company desires to purchase these lines and the thirty independent refineries, but if the producers will invest an additional $300 000 these transportation lines and refineries can still be operated, thus securing commercial freedom and a much better price for the pure Pennsylvania petroleum.

Over $150 000 towards the new capital required was subscribed by those present. The rest of the amount will be raised in a few days.

Four at a Birth.

A gentleman from Duplin county last evening said that a colored woman living about eight miles from Faison gave birth yesterday morning to four living children, two males and two females. One child died during the morning; the three others are living and apparently strong and healthy.

Lettuce and Spinach.

The Newbern Journal reports shipments from there to Northern markets of from a hundred to a hundred and fifty barrels of spinach and lettuce a day. Prices, it says, are good. The former is $4 00 The shipment of spinach began December 28. The first lettuce went off the 6th of this month.

Fire at Newbern.

Messrs. Sneed & Co., furniture dealers of Wilmington, received information by wire early yesterday morning that their branch store at Newbern was burned out. Mr. E H. Sneed, of the firm, left by the first train for that city.

The Newbern Journal of yesterday, gives the following information concerning the fire: "About 12 30 this morning, just before we went to press, fire was discovered in the furniture store of Messrs. Sneed & Co., P. H. Hewin, manager, on Pollock street, two doors above the postoffice.

"It is thought that the fire originated from fire left burning in the stove. It was too late to get any further particulars. When last viewed, the firemen were hard at work with four streams of water going into the building, freezing as it fell."

SUNDAY MORNING, FEB. 10, 1895

WORK FOR THE ALLIANCE.

The Farmers' Alliance was originally started in Texas as a mutual benefit association, if we may so express it, one of the main objects being to secure to those who belonged to it the advantages of co-operation in buying what they had to buy and in selling what they had to sell. Instead of each farmer buying for himself his wagons, agricultural machinery, etc., he bought through the Alliance, which by buying in large quantities got the benefit of wholesale prices, saved the commissions (which are sometimes large) allowed to agents, and saved other incidental expenses, making in the aggregate a large sum, and so the Alliance man who thus made his purchases got them sometimes fifty per cent. less than he had been in the habit of paying before this co-operative plan was adopted.

That was a good idea. There was thrift and business sense in it. The benefits were so apparent that the order grew rapidly and extended into other Southern States, and from these into the North and West, until it became a national organization.

The plan of purchasing by co-operation was soon followed by the plan of selling by co-operation, that is the Alliance in some States established in central localities warehouses for the storing and sale of cotton which was handled for the members of the Alliance at charges just large enough to defray expenses, and thus the farmers saved considerable that had been going to intermediate agencies which had been handling the cotton under the old method. There was thrift in that and business sense. These were the business features on which the Alliance was started and which if followed up would have proved immensely beneficial to the farmers of the country South and North.

But with numbers and power came the evil counsels of designing and ambitious leaders, who saw in it the opportunity to promote their own pecuniary or political fortunes, and they led it into politics. It attempted too much, and in doing so not only failed to accomplish much that it might have accomplished if it had adhered to its original purpose, but brought within it the elements of dissension and discord which exerted a demoralizing and disorganizing influence. In its mutual co-operative feature it proved a failure because it was diverted from aims in which there was unity of thought and action, and directed to those on which there was a division of sentiment, and which could be accomplished, if accomplished at all, only after a long and arduous contest against able, experienced and thoroughly organized opposition.

When it started out with the view and purpose of bettering the condition of the followers of the plow by mutual co-operation and organization it was on the right line; when it permitted itself to be diverted from that to objects foreign from its first intent it got on the wrong line, because it abandoned methods the good results of which had already become apparent and attempted others the results of which were at least doubtful, and some of which, to say the least, were extremely impracticable and delusive.

There is now a tendency we believe to get back to the original lines, and the sooner that is done the better it will be for the farmers of the United States. We do not mean by this that the farmers should not take any interest in questions which affect the people of this country, farmers as well as others, and involve their weal or their woe. By no means. The farmers both as individuals and as followers of an industry which must be more or less affected by the public policies pursued should take an active interest in public affairs and should contend for the adoption of those policies which they honestly believe will be for the best interests of the people, and of the industry which is the main dependence of the majority of the people, and which contributes most to the commerce and prosperity of the country as a whole. But they can do that in one way while another way must be resorted to to accomplish those purposes with which public policies have nothing to do, but the accomplishment of which are of quite as much if not more importance to them than the establishment of public policies, which can benefit them only in common with others. If by co-operation the farmer can save a hundred dollars in the course of a year, that would be equivalent to adding a hundred dollars to the value of his crop. If by co-operation he can establish home manufactories, and thus a home market for what he produces, it adds something, and a good deal in the aggregate, to the value of his crops. If by co-operation he can establish manufactories and thus put on the market in finished form the raw material he produces, he gets all the profit there is in it, and that adds immensely to the value of his crops. There is none of these things that the farmers of the South cannot do by co-operation, with proper and well directed effort if they make up their minds to do it and go about it in earnest.

There are few if any cotton-growing counties in the South where they might not establish a cotton factory to manufacture the cotton grown in the county. The number of mills would, of course, be governed by the product of cotton; when there was material enough grown for more than one, more than one might be established, where there was not enough for one then two or more counties might unite. When money was lacking it could be secured without much difficulty for works of this kind.

It is on lines like this that the Alliance can find much to do and in doing it not only contribute to the prosperity of its own members but to the prosperity of the South and of the country at large.

MINOR MENTION.

There is a growing sentiment in this country in favor of purer water for household and especially drinking purposes, for it is now a recognized fact attested by scientific investigation and the experience of physicians, that there is much sickness and of a fatal character which might be escaped if pure drinking water were the rule instead of the exception. The following extract from a paper read by Dr. S. C. Busey, President of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, at a meeting of citizens called to consider the pure water question for the city of Washington, will prove interesting as bearing upon this point:

"He exhibited a chart showing the ratio of cases of typhoid fever to 10 000 inhabitants in large European and American cities before and after the introduction of abundant pure water supply. Brooklyn, he said, has perhaps the best water supply in the United States, and her ratio is 1 5, or practically nothing. Dr. Busey then sketched diagrams on a blackboard representing a number of towns on the Hudson and Mohawk rivers and tracing epidemics of typhoid fever to the one source of impure water. One town escaped because its water supply came from another source. He also traced an appalling epidemic in Plymouth, Pa., to the dwelling of a mountaineer on the stream from which the town received its water supply, the man having contracted the disease in Philadelphia. He pictured the possibilities of similar cases in villages or dwellings above Great Falls and what the results might be. Another diagram, and the most striking of all, showed the ratio of typhoid fever cases in cities having a complete and perfected water and sewage system. Washington leading with 4.5 for the five years, 1880 to 1884 which increased to 67 in the five years, 1885 to 1890. 'Washington,' said Dr. Busey, 'is the worst city in this respect in the country with one or two exceptions. Now why should this mortality be increased here?' He proceeded to explain the reason by reference to three maps of the city, one showing the location of cases of the disease, another showing the location of the public pumps, and the other showing the location of outhouses not having sewer connections. The fever cases, he claimed, were most numerous in the vicinity of the pumps and outhouses the leakage from the latter contaminating the water in the wells. 'We cannot get rid of pumps,' he added, 'until we get sufficient water supply, and we cannot get rid of the outhouses until we get sufficient sewerage.'"

Other physicians present expressed their views pretty much on the same line, supporting the position taken by Dr. Busey. But any family can solve this question for itself regardless of what municipalities may do by boiling the water they drink.

President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle have, for the present at least, solved the Treasury problem, which they were asking Congress to help them in, by negotiating the sale of a sufficient amount of thirty-year bonds to bring the gold reserve up to the $100,000,000 mark, and they have done this thing so quietly while Congress was laboring over the various plans proposed, that it was accomplished before anybody outside of those engaged in the transaction knew anything about it. The fact that arrangements were made for such a small loan shows that the intention was simply to provide for present necessities, and not to issue any more bonds than might be actually necessary to replenish the depleted gold reserve. Unless Congress should (which is now very unlikely) adopt some measure to supply the Treasury with gold without borrowing, this means either another issue of bonds in a short while or the convening of Congress in extra session, the latter of which would not surprise us in the least, although the President is said to be averse to it. But possibly he may conclude that as the Republicans have persistently refused to co-operate with the Democrats who were anxious to pass some measure of relief that it wouldn't be a bad idea to call them together and let them try their hand at solving the problem.

* * *

The correspondence sent by the President Friday to Congress in reference to the situation in Hawaii is the first authentic information we have had on that subject. It seems from this that the "Sons of the Missionaries" are not disposed to deal gently with the adherents of the ousted queen, but on the contrary are going to make an example of some of them to strike the natives with terror and put a stop to that kind of business in the future. They have even given the repentant ex queen to understand that she has not been absolved by her public renunciation of all claims on the throne, from personal responsibility for her share, whatever it may have been in that racket. The fact that two American citizens are among those sentenced to death by the court martial gives additional interest to its findings and brings up the Hawaiian question in a new shape, when this Government may possibly have to intervene not to protect the Sons of the Missionaries from the people of the islands, but to protect American citizens from the Sons of the Missionaries, who themselves are but one degree removed from American citizenship. They are Americans who became Hawaiians from accident or choice. It seems to us, viewing it from this distance and considering the character of the people whom these "Sons" claim the right to govern, that all the desirable ends would be as well accomplished by sending these convicted "rebels" out of the country, and sparing their lives.

CURRENT COMMENT.

— Mr. Carlisle takes a roseate view of the resources of the treasury for 1895. He anticipates a snug surplus over and above all expenses. We have the highest respect for Mr. Carlisle personally, but we have known but few of his financial predictions that were justified by after results, and we think it is quite likely that the balance will be on the wrong side of the ledger when the government closes its accounts for 1895.—Petersburg Index-Appeal, Dem.

— A cotton mill manufacturer of Lowell, referring to the building of mills in the South, says: "There is one mistake some of these Southern mills have made—that is, in taking second-hand machinery from a Northern mill which was discarding its outfit to go into another kind of cotton manufacture. I do not know of a Southern mill which has taken second-hand machinery which has been successful."—Augusta Chronicle, Dem.

— The anti toxine serum may or may not justify in the final test of experience all the claims made for it by its more sanguine advocates. It may even pass into oblivion and disuetude, along with Koch's lymph. However that may be, it is no business of Congress to attempt to pass upon the therapeutic value of the discovery before putting it upon the free list. The fact that there is a demand for it, and that the demand comes from reputable physicians and medical bodies, ought to be enough. If it shall fail to respond to this demand Congress will be unmindful of its obligation to humanity—an obligation which it recognized with such beneficent effect in making quinine free.—Phil. Record, Dem.

STRENGTH FOR TO-DAY.

Strength for to-day is all that we need,
As there will never be a to-morrow;
For to-morrow will prove another to-day,
With its measure of joy and sorrow.

Then who foresees the trials of life
With much sad and anxious perseverance,
And wait and watch for a crowd of ills
That as yet have no existence?

Strength for to-day; what a precious boon
For earnest souls who labor,
For the willing hands that minister,
To the needy friend or neighbor.

Strength for to-day, that the weary hearts
In the battle of life may quail not,
And the eyes bedimmed by bitter tear s
In their search for life may fail not.

Strength for to-day on the down-hill track
For the travellers near the valley,
That up, far up, on the other side,
Ere long they may safely rally.

Strength for to-day, that our precious youth
May happily shun temptation,
And build from the rise to the set of the sun,
On a strong and sure foundation.

Strength for to-day in house and home
To practice forbearance sweetly;
To scatter kind words and loving deeds,
Still trusting in good comp etely.

Strength for to-day is all that we need,
As there never will be a to-morrow;
For to-morrow will prove another to-day,
With its measure of joy and sorrow.

NOVEL NOTIONS.

Bonnets Will Be Worn to Show the Front Hair.

For some time past, as the hair has been worn rather high, the inclination has been to wear the bonnet well forward. But news from Paris is that the bonnet will be worn sufficiently far back to show the arrangement of the front hair and also so make the things seem really a necessity. The shape which is most favored is that known as the Dutch cap, which fits the head quite closely, after the fashion of the velvet and bead hats worn by the pretty Dutch girls in some pictures. Modernized, the cap reaches to just above the ears, is quite flat on top and extends in the back to midway of the head. It is made of felt, of velvet, of cloth and occasionally of moire. The prettiest and most becoming ones are those made of velvet. The decoration usually stands high up and is placed on top of the little bonnet near the front. To carry out the idea of a Dutch cap there is also shown in velvet and in glowing colors bunches of tulips that suggest their being precious in the eyes of the old time collector.

Flowers now follow fashion, like bonnets and dresses. No prophetic spirit ever guides the flower grower how to meet the public taste, so that sometimes quantities of certain cut flowers turn out to be most unsalable. This year roses were not nearly as much in demand for buttonholes as the humble blue cornockle, which still seems to maintain its place. The hideous green carnation, tinted by some process in which verdigris is used, is on sale, and there are actually buyers who like to wear it.

A rather novel design is shown in the model illustrated. It is of dahlia cloth and has a bell skirt and a round bodice, with a back gathered at the waist. The skirt has a line of narrow black gimp around the foot as its sole trimming, but an immense bow of wide black velvet ribbon is fastened at the waist in front, with two long fringed ends falling to the feet. An end of the ribbon is carried up each side of the bodice to the chest, the edges being fastened down with gimp. The tight black velvet sleeves have a puff of dahlia velvet from shoulder to elbow.

CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

Simply Made Garments of Serge and Cheviot the Most Satisfactory.

Those who have plenty of money need little advice in regard to the selection of clothing for their boys. To get those that are becoming and fashionable is comparatively easy, and as long as the stock on hand may be continually renewed without inconvenience there is no trouble. The woman with a small income must, however, find the purchase of attire for her growing, active boy a serious responsibility. She would not on any account check his activities, or else he becomes weak and effeminate, but these activities, however profitable they may be to his body, are extremely trying to ordinary clothing. There are many to sympathize with that mother who longed for the invention of a practicable leather suit for growing boys. But, alas, none has so far been invented which is within the means of the average buyer. A suit should be made, in the first place, of strong, good cloth. Cheap shoddy material is like tow in the fire before the onslaught of the boy. For all but the warmest weather a good cheviot is comfortable and will resist his ravages as well as anything. A boy cannot change his school clothes every time he wishes to indulge in a game of leapfrog or climb a tree. Therefore a suit which shall be at the same time decorous enough for the schoolroom and stout enough for the playground is a desideratum for the boy of from 6 to 16.

For girls' school gowns there is nothing better than a good quality of serge. This material stands wear and exposure to dampness and does not tear easily, as does cashmere. Although girls are not quite as hard upon their clothing as are boys, they are usually fond of active sports and up to the age of 11 or 12 years at least hate to have their amusements hampered by the need of taking care of frippery, and it is only just to allow them liberty from the bonds of dress as long as they desire it, which is not very long.

The first gown illustrated is of tan and blue figured woolen goods. The bretelles, epaulets and collar are of plain blue goods and the belt of blue velvet. The wrists are edged with fur. The second gown is of figured woolen goods in old rose. It is in one piece and has a scarf drapery back and front.

Mighty Happy.

Oh, we're feelin mighty happy
As along the road we jog,
For the fat is on the possum,
An the bark is on the dog.

An life is not a riddle,
But is happiness complete,
For the bow is on the fiddle,
An the move is on the feet!

Then sing the joy of living,
An just go it with a whoop!
For the cash is on the counter,
An the oyster's in the soup!

THE ROYALIST.

Queen Victoria possesses a walking stick that was owned by Charles II.

It is said that the Prince of Wales proposes to be known as Edward VII if he ever reigns.

The empress of Russia is founding a children's hospital to mark the marriage of her son with Princess Alix of Hesse.

Princess Victoria of Wales has conferred upon her the bardic title of "Buddug" at the national Eisteddfod held this year.

The queen of Italy speaks Italian, French, German and English fluently, and her boudoir table is generally strewn with books and magazines in all four languages.

The shah of Persia is the owner of a Shetland pony which is only 12 inches in height, two inches smaller than the famous "miniature equine" belonging to Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

Eugenie has the London and Paris newspapers read to her after breakfast every morning, and not until she knows the news of the world does she open her mail. The ex-empress was 68 years old last spring.

Prince Francois Marie of Bourbon, who recently issued a manifesto claiming the crown of France, is a Spanish general and a first cousin once removed and nephew-in-law of Queen Isabella. His mother was a Spanish lady of rank.

"DIXIE."

The Tune Brought Him Close to His Old Kentucky Home.

This story is not new. It is old in point of date, though not in publicity. It is true, however, or at least vouched for as such by a New York man born in the south. And this is the way he told it in Louisville some time ago:

"What year was it that Pat Gilmore's band was playing in Madison Square Garden for the last time? It doesn't matter. It was the year before Gilmore's death anyhow. I ought to remember the date, though, for one of your Louisville boys caused me to remember every incident of a certain night that season. I'll tell you all about it if you like."

The question in the New Yorker's words was drowned in the tone that vociferated his wish to tell the story, and it was called for by a polite chorus.

"I had been to a dinner party and drifted into the Garden because I was lonely and had seen everything at the theaters worth seeing. I didn't pay much attention to the concert, and as I sipped a green mint I became interested in a young man at the table next to mine. I didn't know him then, but I learned afterward that he was a prominent young insurance man of Louisville. He had evidently been seeing the seamy side of New York for some days and had 'held up his end,' as is the custom of Kentuckians. But he had come to the conclusion that he needed a little solitude; had forsaken his friends and found the desired loneliness in the crowded garden. He picked his steps with suspicious care as he came in, but the good form of his appearance was marred only by a wrinkle or two on the linen that formed part of his evening dress. The cause of these wrinkles was apparent when, leaving the glass untasted before him, his head sank and he fell into a much needed sleep. I smiled and thought of other things until toward the close of the programme the band began a medley of national airs. It opened with 'Yankee Doodle,' 'Marching Through Georgia,' and half a dozen other tunes followed, and then with a brassy crash the band started the air that for all time will start a tingling every drop of blood in the veins of a southern born man. The bowed neck of the sleeping stranger swung straight and his eyes opened. Dazed by his sudden awakening, he looked about him a moment. Then, as the strains of the music swept upon his ear, he sprang to his feet, shot one hand with clinched fist above his head, and in a voice that echoed from side to side of the big building yelled:

"'Dixie, by G—d!'

"There was an instant of dead silence followed by a shout of laughter and applause. Gilmore looked around, provoked and disconcerted, and for the first time that famous band blundered and the medley continued with little regard for musical accuracy. No lobster a la Newburg was ever redder than that young man from Louisville as he sat in his chair. He wished himself a thousand miles away, but he was too game to run, and when first one and then another employee of the place gathered around him and told him he must leave this conversation followed:

"'You must get out of here.'

"'I won't do it.'

"'You've got to. You've raised a disturbance here, and you'll either get out or be put out.'

"'I won't go. I'm sorry I made any noise, but it will be bad for the first man that lays hands on me for cheering for Dixie.'

"'Come! Get out of here.'

"And just then, three tables away, a big dark man arose and came toward the group. From five tables away a little man with blazing eyes was already coming. Five—ten—twenty men were coming from this side and that. I lost count of the number, but in a moment the employees around the young stranger were no longer in an overwhelming majority, and in low, quiet tones in whose coolness lay the bulldog growl I heard:

"'He'll not go out.'

"'Not until he's quite ready.'

"'Leave the gentleman alone and leave him at once!'

"And they left him. And the crowd made Gilmore play that medley three times. And every time 'Dixie' was reached there was a cheer that made the roof ring. And that's all there is to my story except that I am going to look up that young man while I'm here, because he blotted out ten years of New York and brought me mighty close to 'my old Kentucky home' that night."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Red Tape.

It is well to be cautious, but there are times when even caution may be carried to excess. The widow of a German officer went to the pension office for the purpose of drawing the pension due her.

She presented the usual certificate of the mayor of the village in which she lived, to the effect that she was still alive.

"This certificate is not right," said the official in charge severely.

"What is the matter with it?" inquired the poor widow.

"It bears the date of Dec. 21," was the stern reply, "and your pension was due on Dec. 15."

"What kind of a certificate do you wish?" inquired the disappointed applicant.

"We must have a certificate stating that you were alive on the 15th of December," said the official, with great firmness. "Of what possible use is this one that says you were alive on the 21st of December—six days later?"—Youth's Companion.

Not Thankless.

"Well, Harry, what are you doing nowadays?"

"Writing for the press."

"Thankless sort of work, ain't it?"

"Bless your heart, no. 'Bout everything I write is returned with thanks."—London Quiver.

CORBETT AND FITZSIMMONS.

Jim Corbett's vocal organs are still in good trim.—Chicago Mail.

In the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight the preliminary debate should be limited to two years.—Chicago News.

And now Mr. Fitzsimmons aspires to the championship of the world. This proves that Fitz has a very long reach.—Atlanta Constitution.

The public interest in the troubles of the Vanderbilts is second only to the question of whether or not Corbett will fight Fitzsimmons.—Providence News.

So far as skill and prodnctiveness in letter writing go, Bob Fitzsimmons deserves to travel in the same pugilistic class as Jim Corbett.—Memphis Appeal.

The recent rise of the pugilistic drama is possibly responsible for these dialogue preliminaries between Mr. Corbett and Mr. Fitz-Hugh Simmons.—Washington Times.

Mr. Corbett doesn't regard Mr. Fitzsimmons as in his class, and he is probably right. Mr. Fitz has done very little talking during his career.—Kansas City Journal.

Mr. Fitzsimmons is giving Mr. Corbett no end of trouble. Mr. Fitzsimmons is so oblivious of the rules of the profession as to want to fight right off the bat.—Washington Post.

The consensus of opinion among the sporting men of the country seems to be that Corbett should meet Fitzsimmons and not try to shift the battle on some other pugilist.—Portland Argus.

THE TATTLER.

Mrs. Robert Goelet is said to pay taxes on $8,000,000.

Mrs. William Brokaw can manage a boat almost as well as her husband, the well known yachtsman.

Lady Jane Grey read Plato at the age of 13, and Mme. Roland was an omnivorous reader at the age of 4.

Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart, widow of the famous Confederate raider, is now the principal of a girls' school in Missouri.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Charles Henrotin and other influential women led a feminine uprising that has resulted in the closing of Chicago's gambling establishments.

Miss Charlotte Waldo carries the mail daily from Ashford to Bolton Notch through Bolton hills, said to be the worst mail route in Connecticut. For $150 a year she drives 216 miles each week.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster is a brilliant speaker, but she is very unpleasant to reporters. On the other hand, Mrs. Lease is very popular with the reporting fraternity. The newspaper young men have consequently made Mrs. Lease famous.

Miss Helen Martin, daughter of United States Senator Martin of Kansas, has entered the novitiate at St. Mary's Catholic academy at Leavenworth, intending to become a nun. She recently became a convert to the Catholic faith.

Mme. Casimir-Perier is a tall, elegant appearing woman, with brown hair and eyes and a beautiful complexion. A somewhat pronounced nose gives an aristocratic stamp to her features, while her imposing height and carriage lend distinction to her presence.

Miss Ella Knowles, who came very nearly being elected state's attorney of Montana, has just been paid a fee of $10,000 for effecting a settlement in a lawsuit involving large mining interests. This is probably the highest fee ever paid a woman lawyer.

When Lady Randolph Churchill was at Bar Harbor, she went off on one fishing excursion. Her ladyship is something of an angler, and every year she takes a trip to the north of Scotland during the salmon fishing season, and her "catches" are something wonderful.

Miss Anna Gould, that ever discussed heiress, has a fad for horses. At Furlough Lodge, her brother's place in the Adirondack mountains, she keeps a magnificent team for her own driving, and she has besides several saddle horses there and a stableful of young horses.

About two years ago Mrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer had her portrait painted. She wore for the event a magnificent white and gold toilet, which she had made for a grand ball. While not strictly a beautiful woman, Mrs. Havemeyer has rather a distinguished air and looks quite the grande dame.

Miss Virginia Fair has a fad for fans. She owns the largest and most expensive private collection. They are all for use, too, and match her costumes, of which she has hundreds every year. Miss Fair did not set out with the idea of making a collection of fans, but the number has increased until she has come to have a justifiable pride in them.

THE WHEELMAN.

You can sit on a wheel without it being inclined to talk back.

It is not always the brightest nickel that is most proof against rust.

Cork handles are easily cleaned by wiping them with a cloth on which turpentine has been poured.

A wheel has been invented by an English cyclist which has a 120 gear, as easy to work as a 64. Next, please!

The beauty of a cycle is perishable as that of a woman, and fashions in cycles are as changeable as women's dress.

In England there is a company in which wheels can be insured against damage by collision and damage caused by third parties.

The more the diamond is cut the brighter it sparkles, but the more a cycle gets polished in the shops the weaker becomes the tube.

Sixty inches will be found to be the best all around gear. It does not cause one's feet to travel too fast down hill nor put too great a strain on the rider up hill.

A woman who has tried to learn to ride a bicycle without any assistance declares that to do so successfully requires "the patience of Job, the persistence of the pilgrim fathers and the martyrdom of Joan of Arc."—Sporting Life.

THE DEACON.

The pastor of the Wilberforce Memorial church, Birmingham, England, Rev. Peter Stanford, is a negro who was born in slavery.

The Congregationalists of Massachusetts have adopted a plan for bringing together churches without pastors and pastors without churches.

General Booth of the Salvation Army and his captains of either sex have been officially declared to be ministers of religion within the meaning of the law.

At the age of 73 years Bishop William Taylor is as zealous as ever in the work of evangelizing Africa, though many of his best men have died or been compelled to return.

Rev. Father Peter Havermans of Troy, N. Y., has been a priest for 61 years and for 51 years has been pastor of St. Mary's church in that city, which he built and in which he still celebrates mass every Sunday.

The Rev. James McMahon of the Catholic university of Washington, whom the pope has just made a prelate of the holy see, with the title of monsignor, is worth nearly $1,000,000 and has given a great deal of money to the university.

THE HORSEMAN.

Monroe Salisbury has purchased the pacer Tom Webster, 2:12¼.

Pittsburg Phil lost $10,000 on the defeat of Clifford by Domino.

The famous Henry of Navarre is suffering from rheumatism of the legs.

Waldo J, the California pacing gelding, 2:09 and 4 years old, was purchased for $60.

Trevilian's record of 2:09¾ is the fastest ever made by a Kentucky trotting stallion.

Joe Patchen's extreme stride is 29 feet 10 inches, or 2 feet more than that of Allx.

The running horse Banquet is a notorious "whistler," blowing hard after a half mile race.

A harness constructed entirely of horsehair is on exhibition at Lovelock, Cal. The tails of 500 wild horses were required to make it.

The great stallion Tristan is dead in Hungary. His owner had only recently purchased him for $60,000 from the Duchess of Montrose.

Alec Taylor, the famous trainer for two Dukes of Beaufort, died at Marlborough, England, recently, aged 71. He trained nine Derby winners.

The old time pacer Johnston, who went a mile in 2:06¼ to an ancient style sulky in 1884, has been retired. He was 11 years on the turf, and his record is still untouched.

Levernore, the ringer, as Richard W won two heats at Mexico, Mo., recently before he was detected. George Houck, who handled him as Little Fred in Texas, was his driver.

Riley Grannan's book of $108,000 to lose on the Domino-Henry of Navarro race at Gravesend is the largest ever made in this country. His percentage on the dead heat run was $18,000.

Contradictory.

How do you like the latest style
O bird of lady's bonnet?
The biped said: 'It's awful sweet.
I am not struck upon it."
—Detroit Tribune.

Chilly Weather.

The hoar frost glitters on the lawn,
The fall is here without a doubt,
And many an overcoat's in pawn,
Alas! that can't be gotten out.
—Boston Courier.

Took the Traces With Him.

Sanford—Did you ever find your runaway horse?

Merton—No, never got a clew to him. He left no trace behind him.—New York World.

THE HORSEMAN.

Dennis Clark is a young Britisher who is a quite successful trainer in Russia. His stable won 50,000 rubles this season.

John T. Hughes of Lexington, Ky., bought Rex McDonald, 853, for $6,500. This is the highest price ever paid for a saddler.

J. B. Haggin is negotiating for the purchase in Australia of Quirassier, a bay horse, foaled in 1885, by Musket, dam Frailty.

When standing and the traces are straightened, there should be about room enough for a small boy to crawl through between the horse and the breeching.

C. J. Hamlin says that if no method can be devised by which betting can be done the experiment will be tried of giving at Buffalo a meeting without betting.

"Rubinstein is dead" was the headline that startled horsemen recently. They were relieved when they found that it was not the horse of that name. It was only the composer.

Curiously enough, in Throstle, the winner of the St. Leger, there are four crosses of the famous Benningborough, which won the St. Leger exactly a hundred years ago.

C. Fleischmann & Sons have engaged Charley Thorpe for 1895. His salary will be $8,500. Thorpe, although now quite a veteran rider, has ridden as low as 103 pounds this year.

Robert J has justly earned the title of champion. He holds the world's record for harness performers, the world's record in a race, world's record for a gelding, for a three heat race, for a four heat race and others.

C. H. Nelson says: "There are mighty few animals that carry the hot thoroughbred blood close up that will do to race. With most of them you have got to part your hair in the middle and balance yourself perfectly in your sulky, or they go to pieces."—Horseman.

TOBACCO.

Salt is added to all wet snuffs to prevent moldiag.

About 220,000,000 cigars are annually exported from Havana.

It is said that tobacco seed will retain its vitality eight or ten years.

The yield of a tobacco farm is said to be from 600 to 1,000 pounds an acre.

The poorer and cheaper varieties of snuff are sometimes made from refuse stems and leaves.

Nitrate of potash or soda is sometimes added to smoking tobacco to increase the combustibility.

The choicest varieties of tobacco are raised along the banks of such Cuban rivers as overflow every year.

France imports from the United States nearly one-half of the tobacco manufactured in the government factories.

The tobacco supplied by the French government factories to the consumer is said to be the worst in the civilized world.

Since 1865 the government has collected in revenue on tobacco the stupendous sum of $896,515,567. The best year was 1882, $47,891,929.

The valley of the Connecticut river produces a tobacco leaf so fine and silky that it is often exported to Cuba and other countries to use as a wrapper.

After the plant is cut down it must be allowed to wilt, so that it can be handled without breaking. If left too long in the sun, however, it becomes sunburned, and its quality is impaired.

In England the temptation to adulterate tobacco is much stronger than with us, on account of the higher price. Dock, rhubarb, colt's foot and other kinds of leaves have been occasionally employed, but their use is not frequent, as a very heavy fine is inflicted for the offense.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE ASTOR TRAMP.

J. J. Astor never had a tramp on his hands before, and he is going to make the most of this one.—New York Journal.

Tramps, as a rule, are not retiring, but the one who went to bed in Astor's house seems to have been.—Yonkers Statesman.

It is a big crime in the eyes of John Jacob Astor for a tramp to sleep in one of those downy Astorian beds.—Kennebec Journal.

Somebody ought to tell Jack Astor what a silly mess he is making. He evidently has not wit enough to see it himself.—Rochester Times.

The penalty for trespassing in the Astor mansion should be just the same as the penalty for trespassing in the rooms of the poorest tenant of a house or rooms.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Jack Astor has run down Garvin, the tramp. Mr. Astor seems to think that law for millionaires is different from that framed for ordinary individuals.—Philadelphia North American.

The New York papers have had as much fun about the invasion of Mrs. William Astor's house by a tramp as they enjoyed in recounting Mr. George Gould's entrance into society through the medium of the horse show.—Providence Journal.

The all absorbing sensation in New York is the finding of that tramp in one of John Jacob Astor's spare bedrooms. Gotham society has not been so profoundly wrought up since the eventful day when the late Mr. Crowley died at the zoo.—Chicago Tribune.

THE STAMP OF STYLE.

Jet is much in evidence on the new winter gowns.

Black velvet shoes, with tiny paste buckles, are worn with black velvet gowns.

Black and Lincoln green is a favorite combination of the season that has about it an especial dash and style.

Braiding still appears on many smart cloth gowns. Green velvet braided in black and used to trim a blue cloth dress is only one of the fashionable tricolor combinations in this sort of trimming.

The divided skirt is an accepted article now of woman's wear. Some charming divided skirts for evening wear are made in pale blue twill cashmere, accordion plaited and lined throughout with thin white veiling.

Buttons have taken inches, and, it may be added, dollars too. Six or eight large buttons trim a bodice, four being used in front, two set on the semipostillion back and often two more in the scarf or band which finishes the wrists.

The new godet plaits for sleeves give to those already mammoth affairs an added touch of amplitude. The plaits stand out in three straight loops from the shoulder, their size being in many cases apparently only limited by ability to buy material.—New York Times.

THE PHILOSOPHER.

Victories have longer memories than defeats.

Women kiss and remember. Men strike and forget.

Everlasting sorrow would swallow up eternal joy.

The flower that lacks perfume can never entirely please.

A woman's endurance will outlast a man's strength.

Shrewdness knows how to make much capital from one success.

Because a blind man may hit the bullseye is a foul reason for shooting at random.

There are no exceptions to eternal rules. Chance itself is but a misunderstood illustration of the inexorable law of certainty.

There is at least so much of an honest business element in all religions that poor pay cannot be expected to preach good sermons.—Chicago Herald.

SERMONETTES.

Poverty is less disgraceful than sin, but it's more unfashionable.

A man has to go to the bad to get there. It never comes to meet him.

Starvation at home and big contributions for converting the heathen abroad don't go well together.

It's just as well there's no tax on bachelors. All the young men would want to stay single just to prove they could afford it.

Self possession is a valuable quality, but most women are ready to lose it if the right man comes along.—New York Recorder.

THE LISTENER.

Potter Palmer and John B. Drake, two Chicago bonifaces, are rated at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 each.

The Duke of Beaufort has transferred all his property to his son-in-order to save the young man from paying an inheritance tax at his death.

John W. Crisfield of Princess Anne county, Md., who christened the town which bears his name, though 86 years of age, is still an active practitioner at the bar.

General William Gibson of Ohio has made more campaign speeches than any orator of his generation. He has taken the stump every election for almost 50 years.

General Joseph Roberts of Philadelphia was assistant professor of natural philosophy at West Point when Grant, McClellan, Burnside and T. J. Jackson were cadets.

Dr. John T. McLean of Alameda, Cal., wrote the first call for a Republican convention ever held in California, in April, 1856. He was also the first to open the Yosemite to the public.

Prince Hohenlohe, the new German chancellor, is a nice, quiet and gentlemanly old man, who looks as if sugar would not melt in his mouth, but who always has his own way or knows the reason why.

J. Pierpont Morgan, the banker, is one of the plainest and most unpretentious millionaires in New York. He lives a sensible, unostentatious life and does a vast amount of charitable and philanthropic work.

Cesar Thomson, the violinist, has a high forehead, deep eyes and thin, nervous hands, the conventional artist equipment. He is a yachting enthusiast and is refreshingly free from the affectations of the virtuoso.

Thomas Earle White, a brilliant young Philadelphia lawyer, is known as a supporter of theoretical anarchy. Although a society leader and of ample fortune, he contributes liberally to the funds of the radicals.

D. W. Caldwell, the new president of the Lake Shore road, is one of the best entertainers in Cleveland, where he has a handsome residence. He began his career over 40 years ago as a clerk on the Pennsylvania system.

Marion Butler, who is expected to be the representative of North Carolina Populists in the United States senate, is 32 years old, the president of the National Farmers' Alliance and perhaps the most eloquent living Tar Heel.

Dr. Henry C. McCook, the noted Presbyterian divine, is an enthusiastic naturalist as well as a soldier and exponent of heraldry. He took up entomology as a recreation in 1874 while staying in the Alleghany mountains to recover his health.

Francesco Crispi, the Italian statesman, is in his seventy-fifth year. He was exiled in 1848 for his share in the Palermo insurrection. Under Garibaldi he took part in the successful revolution of 1859-60 and became a member of the provisional government.

Thomas Settle, the "baby member" of the present congress, will have his nose out of joint in the next house. He was born in 1865. There are said to be two or three younger members elected to the Fifty-fourth congress, with Mr. Howard of Alabama the youngest of them.

Major Morrill, who has been elected governor of Kansas, is a man of impressive physique. He is over 6 feet tall, and his 200 pounds of flesh are well proportioned. He is in many ways the mainstay of Hiawatha, his place of residence, and highly popular with the neighbors.

THE LATEST. THE GREATEST.

Ninth Edition.

Encyclopædia Britannica.

Not Condensed

Not Revised,

Not Mutilated.

—BUT—

The Great And Only

ENCYCLOPÆDIA Britannica.

Complete in 25 Volumes

The Encyclopædia Britannica is not only a complete compendium of all knowledge, but it is a dictionary of biography, a record of inventions, a history of discoveries, a calendar of dates, a registry of events, a glossary of technical and scientific terms, a collection of mathematical, chemical, and mechanical formulas, a handbook of law, a medical guide.

Best At as In the World.

The most thorough and reliable key to business knowledge, a manual of games, sports and amusements, a thesaurus of statistics, a history of all countries and people, a storehouse of criticism, a treasury of curious learning, a vade mecum for the household and farm, as for the office and library, a repertory of useful information. If the professional or the business man should undertake to put upon his library shelves the special treaties, which would cover as wide a range of topics as those gathered in the Britannica, relating to his own pursuits, his purchases would extend over scores of volumes, some of them rare and expensive, and many of them not brought down to date.

Of all the works of reference now in the market, the Encyclopædia Britannica is not only the most comprehensive, but by far the cheapest, even at

The Original Price of $8 Per Volume.

Heretofore this work could be obtained only at a great cost—from $125 to $200. It is now, for the first time, placed within reach of the masses. A saving of only 15 cents a day gives you this never-failing fountain of knowledge. Is it not worth such a slight effort to obtain it?

The STAR will for a short time furnish this great work in Cloth binding at $1.60 per volume; in full sheep at $2 20 per volume, and will deliver the whole set upon payment of $5 cash, giving you long time to pay the balance.

The purchase of any Encyclopædia short of the best is not only bad judgment, but worse economy. The STAR will furnish you this, the greatest literary production of the century, at one-third the former price and on terms so accommodating that none need deny themselves the great advantage of owning this mine of information. Remember that the present is the only time we can call our own. We reserve the privilege of withdrawing this offer at any time. It is made as a favor to the STAR'S readers, and for the purpose of increasing our circulation. You are invited to call and examine the books, or send us your address for further particulars. Out of town subscribers can order by mail, and the books will be sent prepaid.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING FEB. 10, 1895

STEAMSHIP LA GASCOGNE.

The French Liner One Week Over-Due—Serious Apprehension as to Her Safety.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, February 9.—Another day has gone by and still no news of the over-due steamship La Cascogne was received. The arrival of the Tuetonic to day with thrilling stories of terrible gales and no news of the French liner, increased the apprehension. The French ship is now one week over due, and a dozen vessels have passed over the track she should follow without sighting her Agent Forget is still confident that nothing more serious than a derangement of her machinery, combined with bad weather, is responsible for the delay, but friends and relatives of the passengers are becoming seriously alarmed as to the ship's safety. In ship ping circles generally, there is some apprehension, due to the knowledge that a ship with a broken shaft or disabled machinery, is in a precarious condition in such gales as have swept the North-Atlantic during the past three days There is a possibility that one of the other overdue steamers has fallen in with the Gascogne, and is standing by to give her a line when tee weather subsides.

GRAIN AND PORVISIONS.

A Dull Market—Wheat a Trifle Higher—Corn Lower—Pork Product Weak.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Liverpool came with some encouragement in news to wheat holders this morning, and those who were short over night and who therefore were far from being bolders, rallied to the support of the market at a loss to themselves May wheat opened at 58¾c; sold between 58⅛@58⅜c, closing where it opened—⅛@¼c higher than yesterday. Trading in the cash market was on a basis of ½c. decline.

The corn market was rather stiff at start, May opening from unchanged to ¼c above where it rested yesterday. The continuation of low temperature through the country, higher cables and light receipts were, combined, most encouraging, but under free selling it developed that there was a lack of confidence in the crowd. At 45c for May a struggle between opposing concerns occurred but it did not take long for those who were pressing the market with corn to gain the mastery, their advantage being made the less difficult by the action of wheat. May corn opened from 45 to 45¼c, declined to 44¼@44⅝c, closing at 44⅜@44⅝—⅛@¼c under yesterday. Cash corn was a full cent lower than yesterday.

May oats closed a fraction lower than yesterday. Cash oats sold ½c under yesterday.

Provisions—Hogs did not arrive in extraordinary numbers to-day, but as the roads begin to get in better shape, and with the prospect that farmers will ship rather than feed their corn during the continuation of the cold weather, it is anticipated that the runs will become larger to the disadvantage of prices. This theory was adverse to strength in product as shown by the declines and weakness to-day. At the close May pork was 15c lower than yesterday. May lard 7½c lower, and May ribs 7½@10c lower.

SPOTS AND FUTURES.

Total Visible Supply of Cotton—New York Sun's Review of the Market.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, February 9—Total visible supply of cotton for the world is 4,-935 449 bales of which 4,613 269 are American, against 4 539,436 and 5 980,-336 respectively last year. Receipts this week at all interior towns 83 149; receipts from the plantations 131,750; crop in sight 8 104 425 bales.

The Sun says: Cotton advanced two to three points, closed dull at a net improvement of one to two points, with sales of 29 400 bales. Liverpool declined one to one and one-half points for future delivery and closed quiet and steady with spot sales of 7 000 bales at unchanged prices. New Orleans advanced one to three points. Spot cotton here was quiet and unchanged. The Bureau report giving the quantity on plantations will be received on Monday. Receipts at the ports to-day 15 379 bales against 23 797 last week and 13,100 last year. New Orleans expects on Monday 10,000 to 18 000 bales, against 16 111 last Monday and 3,772 last year. Plantation deliveries for the week, according to the Chronicle, were 131,750 bales, against 183 156 last week. The quantity brought into sight for the week was 165 291 bales, against 216,611 last week and 106 976 last year. In sight 8 104,335 bales, against 6,354,945 a year ago.

The world's visible supply is 4 935 449, against 4 953,840 a week ago, and 4 595,-436 a year ago. Of the above 4 613 269 are American, against 4,648,649 last week, and 3 990 936 at this time last year. The world's stock is 410 013 larger than a year ago 648 391 more than at this time in 1893, and 333 836 more than in 1892, the big crop year. Exports to Europe from the ports thus far this season are 4 818 977, against 3,735,874 for the same time last year.

To day's features: There was no thrilling excitement, no wide sweep of quotations and no enormous aggregate of transactions. In fact, the speculation was a small affair. It is expected that the receipts during the coming week or ten days will be light, and however much some operators may be disposed to be little this feature, it seems that Europe is disposed to buy under the circumstances. The weather is too cold at the South to move cotton freely; but still the present conditions are regarded as rather abnormal than otherwise, and the bears contend that the cotton is there and must come out sooner or later. Supplies are ample, trade is quiet and speculation is anything marked. Some who formerly pooh-poohed bearish estimates now stand aghast at the actual figures and the possibilities which they suggest.

CONGRESS YESTERDAY.

THE SENATE VOTE AN APPROPHIATION FOR A CABLE TO THE HAWAIIAN I LANDS.

Appropriation Bills Considered in Both Houses—Time Extended for Making Returns Under the Income Tax Law—Eulogies on Deceased Members Delivered.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, February 9—The Senate decided to day by a vote of 36 to 25 that the amendment to the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill for the construction and maintenance of a telegraphic cable between the United States and the Hawaiian islands was in order under the rules, and immediately afterwards, by a similar vote, it adopted the amendment and then passed the bill

The affirmative vote was given by the Republican and Populist Senators with a single exception—Mr. Pettigrew, Republican. South Dakota, voting no—and six Democratic Senators also voted aye—Messrs. Butler, S. C.; Call, Fla.; Gorman, Md; Hill, N. Y.; Morgan, Ala., and White, Calif. All the negative votes were given by Democrats.

Following is the text of the amendment: "The President is hereby authorized to contract for the entire work of laying a telegraphic cable between the United States and the Hawaiian Islands, and to direct the prosecution of such work whenever such a contract shall be made, and as a part of the cost of such cable the sum of five hundred thousand dollars is hereby appropriated."

In the course of the discussion Mr. Manderson (Rep., of Nebraska) took the ground that even if the rules did stand in the way of such an important proposition the rules ought to be brushed aside—a position which Mr. Gray (Dem., of Delaware) described "as anarchy." Mr. Manderson was equally outspoken in his utterances that the time had come for the great Republic to extend its limits, and to become the rival of England in obtaining the islands of the ocean. He advocated the taking not only of the Sandwich Islands, but of some of the islands of the Carribean Sea.

Mr. Lodge (Rep., Massachusett) expressed similar views and frankly admitted that the main object of the amendment was to take the first step towards a proper protection of the United States in the region lying around her coasts.

The Postoffice Appropriation bill was then taken up so as to have it before the Senate.

At 8 p. m. resolutions were offered by Mr McMillan (Republican) and were adopted, expressing profound sorrow of the Senate at the death of his late colleague, Mr. Stockbridge, and "suspending the business of the Senate to enable his associates to pay their tribute to his high character and distinguished public views.

Eulogies were delivered, and as a further mark of respect, the Senate at 4 05 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The proceedings of the House to-day were devoid of any exciting episode or the transaction of any business of general interest or importance. Some progress was made with the consideration of the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill.

The amendment of Mr. Bartlett (Dem., New York) to make the personal clerks of members of the House annual employes instead of sessional, which was the pending question, was agreed to in Committee of the Whole by a vote of 134 to 59 Mr. McMillin (Dem., Tenn) gave notice that he would demand a vote by yeas and nays in the House upon the adoption of the amendment.

A joint resolution from the Committee on Ways and Means by Mr. Wilson (Dem., W Va.) was agreed to, extending for this year only the time within which returns may be made under the income tax law from March 1st to April 15 h.

Mr. Van Voorhis (Rep., N Y) made a statement that attracted the interest of nearly every member, relating to the visit of the Hon. W. R. Creamer, M. P., of England to the House Committee on Foreign Affairs He said:

"Mr. Speaker—I rise to a question of privilege. It is well known that this country has been recently visited by a missionary. His name is the Hon. W. Randall Creamer, and his mission was a mission of peace. He came from England. We all know how peace-loving, how averse to territorial encroachments, how modest and moderate is her pretentions, and how easy to get along with, in her relations with foreign powers Great Britain is. The mission of this gentleman was to establish an international treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain. It was limited to these two powers. He came over in the Teutonic, and reached our shores on the 9th of January last. He soon thereafter came to Washington with a petition to the President and to Congress signed by 254 members of the British Parliament. He solicited permission to appear before the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives. As every member of that committee, I believe, is against war, if it can be avoided, and is in favor of settling all disputes between nations by arbitration, and resorting to the arbitrament of war only when no other honorable course is left open, the request of the honorable Mr. Creamer was unanimously granted and he appeared before the committee. He invited the members of the committee to put questions to him. This was done. I joined in the questioning. The cross-examination was not lengthy or severe It seems, however, that the temper of this missionary became ruffled, and after he left the committee he charged in high quarters that I had insulted him. Of course this charge was unfounded I had no thought of insulting him. I only put a very few direct questions to him, and if he could not answer them to his own satisfaction I cannot see how the fault was mine; I did not learn that he had made the charge until after Mr. Creamer had sailed for England. To insult a distinguished Englishman when addressing a committee of this House, would, in my judgment, be a breach of the privileges of the House In order that the House may know the charge made by this missionary of peace has no foundation to rest upon. I send to the clerk's desk to read a copy of a letter I have sent to Mr. Creamer, which states the case, from my point of observation, exactly as it is. With that I dismiss the subject."

At 3 o'clock the business of the House was suspended and the members listened to eulogies upon the life and services of the late Myron B. Wright, Representative from the Fifteenth district of Pennsylvania.

At their termination the House adjourned until Monday.

The discussion at the meeting of the House Ways and Means Committee to-day developed so much opposition to the recommendation of the President favoring the issuance of a 30-year gold bond, that the subject was postponed until 3 o'clock Monday afternoon next.

At Dinsmore, Fla., last night, John Thomas, colored, with his wife and two children, were instantly killed by the falling of a log shack in which they were sleeping.

A SNOW BLOCKADE.

TRAFFIC ALMOST ENTIRELY SUSPENDED IN NORTHERN STATES.

Seven Trains Stalled Near Alexandria, Va.—The Potomac Frozen Solid—No Trains From New York or the West Could Reach Baltimore.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, February 9—Traffic with the South is still impeded, almost suspended. This morning the Southern Railway managed to get two mail trains through from Alexandria to this city The distance is seven miles and it took over four hours for each trip, although four engines were attached to each train. Seven trains are blocked between Washington and St. Asaph just north of Alexandria. The Potomac is frozen solid for forty miles below Washington and the passenger steamers between Norfolk and this city have suspended operations

As a result of the storm and intense cold Washington is threatened with famines of different kinds. The water supply has run low and this has caused the illuminating gas to be shut off in one section of the town because the gas company is dependent on water for its power.

An oyster famine, so called, is also threatened through the freezing of the river and the consequent suspension of navigation by the oyster boats. There are a few barrels of oysters stored on the wharves, but are so badly frozen that they are totally useless for consumption.

Many people had to do without milk to day because no milk trains could reach town. Meat supplies are also growing short. The weather here remains cold but is moderating.

Secretary Herbert to-day granted the use of the Naval tug Triton to clear the Potomac of ice in the hope of averting a flood.

BALTIMORE, February 9—There has been no improvement to-day in the train service of the various railroads centering here. The suburban trains have moved with some degree of regularity, but the trunk lines are as badly crippled as yesterday. Communication with Washington has been uninterrupted, and the Baltimore & Ohio road has maintained a good service as far north as Philadelphia, but there has been no through trains. The Pennsylvania is in a bad shape around Perryville, and a New York train due here early this morning was lying in a snow-drift at Perryville at noon to-day. A mail train arrived from Philadelphia at noon, but none from New York or the West has reached here up to 6 o'clock to-night. The B & O road, aside from its valley division is getting back into shape. All traffic has been temporarily suspended on the Maryland Central road. On the Western Maryland, business was at a stand-still. Only one train was sent out from this end of the line to-day. The Baltimore and Lehigh is snowed up and all trains abandoned.

No vessels arrived in port to-day, and the steamships scheduled to sail were with one exception, unable to leave their ports on account of the ice and low tide caused by the strong westerly winds, which carried the water out of the harbor.

Mayor Lithrobe will send an ordinance to the City Council on Monday, asking for a special appropriation of $40 000 to clean the snow from the streets of Baltimore.

CUMBERLAND, MD., February 9—Passenger train No 8 on the West Virginia Central Railroad, south bound, together with eight engines, are lost in a snow drift eight miles from this city, at Black Oak bottom. Train No. 8 is the regular afternoon passenger train to Elkins, W. Va., and left here on schedule time yesterday afternoon, but could proceed no further than the above place. The passengers were sent back to this city at once and four engines went to aid train No. 8. They, too, became disabled and this morning four more engines were sent to the scene with like result. The eight engines and the coaches are at this writing stuck last in the drift. Assistance will be brought from the Elkins end of the road. It is bitter cold and the snow is still drifting.

CHICORA PA., Feb 9—The Pittsburg & Western Railroad is blocked for one hundred miles north of Butler. A train going North passed here yesterday and stuck in the snow two miles out and is still there. The passengers were brought back in a farmer's bobsled. Three engines attached to the stranded train have been snowed in and will probably remain until the weather breaks.

PITTSBURG, PA., February 9—All through trains on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad are late to-day, none having arrived at the Smithfield depot up to noon. The New York and Washington Express is now bound east of Cumberland, with no indications as to when it will arrive. The Chicago Express already four and a half hours overdue, has not yet arrived at Wheeling. The Uniontown Express is the only through train on the Pittsburg division and it will be two hours or more late in arriving. The greater part of the company's telegraph wires between Pittsburg and Cumberland are down and communication is seriously interrupted. Freight traffic has been entirely abandoned. Perishable goods are being shipped by baggage or express, while live stock is positively refused. The officials hope to resume regular traffic by the first of next week.

ST. LOUIS, February 9—Accounts are being received of suffering and loss of stock at points West. The Missouri Pacific trains snowed in at Yates Centre, Kansas, were released to-day after a delay of sixty hours. The train stranded at Waverly, Kansas, was moved as far south as Mason, where it was again blocked. A passenger train was snowed in near Salina, Kansas, for thirty-six hours. For the last twelve hours the passengers subsisted on the grocery samples carried by a commercial traveller. His coffee samples were ground in the shovel with the poker and cooked in a can of melted snow. The men took their turn carrying coal over the high drifts from a caboose which was stranded a short distance ahead.

ANNAPOLIS MD, Feb. 9.—This city is snow bound to-day. The morning train to Odenton connecting with the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad was caught last in a snow drift three miles from Annapolis and three engines were unable to pull the cars out. No more trains will leave Annapolis to day.

The damage done on the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries by the storm is very great. North Point and the Kent Island shore are strewn with wrecked oyster boats and loss of life is feared. The heavy snow, wind and almost unprecedented formation of ice cut off from all succor the smaller craft caught in the blizzard and their crews, unprovided with fuel and food for the wintery siege, are suffering many hardships. The ice boat Latrobe started out this morning to relieve distressed vessels and rescue crews from disabled or sinking oyster boats The gale that swept the bay yesterday, according to Capt. Carter, who has for forty years sailed on the Chesapeke was the worst he ever experienced. The ice was everywhere, the cold was bitter and the winds was so strong that a man could not stand on the decks of the Latrobe. The pilot house, 30 feet above water, was swept by the seas, and clouds of freezing pray enveloped the entire vessel.

SOMERVILLE N J., February 7—There are ten big engines stalled in snow drifts along the Central Railroad. Five of these are on side tracks between the Junction and Phillipsburg and four are snow-bound on the south branch. There are forty men in the snow-bound party without anything to eat. The cold is intense and and the men cannot work All their efforts to extricate themselves have been fruitless as the snow blows in faster than it is possible to be shovelled out It was thought that the blockade would be lifted to-night. The main line trains are moving slowly as one track is clear of snow. An unknown woman was frozen to death in the streets here yesterday,

WILMINGTON, DEL., Feb. 9—The four Delaware railroad trains which became blocked yesterday at Mount Pleasant still remain in the snow drifts, and the railroad men have no idea when the blockade will be broken. A relief train sent to the stalled train is also blocked One of the trains is said to be completely covered with snow. Shovelers are at work, but their task will be a long and hard one. Local short railroads are also badly blocked.

BRADFORD, PA., February 9—The snow blockade on all the five roads entering this city still continues. The Erie is completely snowed in. Their double track between Clarion Junction and Mt. Jewett is impassable and two trains are in a snow drift at Russels This morning a large force of men were sent to shovel the trains out, The Erie is not making connections East or West. The Western New York and Pennsylvania train that left here at 4 15 last evening is stalled at Austin switch, about three miles south of Olean. They battled with the snow all night, but were forced to give up when the fuel and water were exhausted. All trains on the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg Railroad have been annulled. The passenger train due from Rochester at 8 53 last night is stalled in the snow. A train was started from Buffalo yesterday afternoon, but the railroad officials saw that it was useless to try to run the train through, and the attempt was abandoned.

The snow is drifted on the tracks to a depth of six feet, and packed so hard that it is an impossibility for a locomotive to get through it.

FLOR DA FREEZE.

All Early Vegetable Crops Killed and the Worst Feared for the Orange Trees.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 9—It is impossible to make any accurate estimate of the damage done in Florida by the blizzard All the early vegetable crops are killed and the worst is feared for the orange trees. The strawberry plants are reported all injured. Of course if the old orange trees are killed the loss will run into millions, but it is too early yet to make an estimate. The freeze was general throughout the State. Even on the east coast as far south as Lake Worth, the mercury fell below the freezing point.

The St. Johns river is frozen to a distance of 25 feet from the bank. Of course the ice was thin, but such an occurrence is unprecedented.

At Carrabelle a Finnish sailor was frozen to death. The weather is moderating now.

THE POPE MURDER.

The Woman's Wife Was the Moving Spirit and the Object $14,000.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, February 9.—A special to a morning paper from Detroit, Michigan, says: Wm. Brusseau, who has since last Saturday told two stories of the murder of Dr. H. E Pope in his home here, last night made a clean breast of the whole affair to the police. This last confession coincides in every particular with the facts the police have unearthed. According to Brusseau's latest story the murder was a carefully planned affair in which Mrs. Pope, the doctor's wife, was the moving spirit, and $14 000 the object. For two weeks before the fatal day the two planned the crime in every particular. Saturday night Mrs. Pope made her husband sleep in a chair by the side of her bed. Toward morning she quietly called Brusseau, and the latter secured a hatchet. Then, in obedience to the command of the women, he raised a half dozen or more blows on their victim's skull. Mrs. Pope's eight-year old daughter who slept at her side during the murder was then awakened and the three carefully rehearsed the story they were to tell the police.

NINE MEN PERISHED

Of the Crew of an Unknown Schooner Ashore on Long Island.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., February 9—It is stated that nine of the crew of the unknown schooner, ashore off Long Hill Life-Saving Station, have perished. Through a field-glass some persons claimed to have seen them in the rigging shortly after the struck yesterday, but one by one they fell into the sea from cold and exhaustion, until but two remained.

The vessel struck in the outer bay off Long Hill Life Saving station. The life saving crew, as soon as they discovered the vessel's plight, made preparations for a rescue. Their life-saving apparatus was brought to the beach, and a life-line shot over the wrecked vessel, but the unfortunate men composing her crew, who had sought refuge in the rigging were unable to get to it, probably because they were benumbed with the cold and thoroughly exhausted. The life savers then attempted to launch their boat, but the high sea and wind made it impossible for them to do so and they were compelled to stand idly by and see the poor sailors perish, for an hour later the crew commenced to drop into the sea. There is but two of their number remaining.

The schooner Manning, the crew of which was taken off in safety, and which went ashore near where the other vessel struck, is in the outer bay and has all her sails set. Her rigging and hull is a solid mass of ice.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., February 9—The frozen body of a man is drifting along the south side of Long Island, about half a mile from the shore. The body has a cork jacket on. The Life Saving crews are unable to get off shore owing to ice inside the harbor. It is supposed that the body is from the vessel wrecked off Lone Hill station.
